General Observations	When making and executing investment decisions, Coremont traders are required to act in good faith and in the best interests of their clients, the asset management for whom treasury services are being provided. With respect to execution, this is achieved by taking all sufficient steps, as required under the FCA rules, to obtain the best possible result for the clients, taking into account the relative importance of the execution factors outlined below. Coremont monitors the effectiveness of its order execution arrangements to identify and, where necessary, correct any deficiencies. There were no deficiencies identified during the reporting period. No single counterparty is favoured compared to others, unless it can be demonstrated that such a counterparty consistently provides a superior service, which would include, for example, providing better pricing, liquidity or speed of execution than its competitors. There were no material changes to Coremont’s execution arrangements during the reporting period.
	Summary of Analysis	Conclusion
Execution Factors	A number of execution factors may be considered depending on the transaction and the market in question. These may include: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) Price; 2) Speed; 3) Likelihood of execution and settlement; 4) Costs; 5) Size and nature of the order; and 6) Any other consideration relevant to the order. The relative importance of the execution factors detailed above was determined by the following execution criteria: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the characteristics of the Client, including the categorisation of the Client as professional; • whether the client has instructed Coremont to act on a discretionary or execution only basis; • the characteristics of the Client order, including where the order involves a securities financing transaction (“SFT”); • the characteristics of the financial instrument that are the subject of that order; and • the characteristics of the brokers and/or execution venues to which that order can be directed. 	During the period under review, Coremont’s overarching execution process was based on these execution factors and criteria as detailed in the Firm’s Order Execution Policy. When effecting transactions on behalf of clients, Coremont will generally weight execution factors in an order of priority based on the asset class in question and the prevailing market conditions, all of which may be subject to changes depending on the execution criteria at the time of the transaction. Ordinarily, price will merit a high relative importance in obtaining the best possible result. However, Coremont may, in its absolute discretion, decide that any other factor or factors are or may be more important than price in determining the best possible execution result. This is particularly the case where Coremont is acting in an advisory only capacity. The relative importance given to these execution factors was in line with Coremont’s order execution policy and consistent with Coremont’s process in respect of these classes of financial instruments.
